For two fast-moving hours each week, Cruise Control hits the national radio airwaves with the most comprehensive news and information about all aspects of the car and truck culture. It's all about auto industry news makers, new products, vehicle reviews, emerging technologies, safety and of course, fix-or-repair-on-the-air. Listeners hear about everything from Daewoo's to diesels, fuel injection to fuel cells, its all about hot rods, hemis and hybrids, plus racing results and restoration tips and much more.

What makes Cruise Control different from every car-related show is its wide-ranging coverage of everything automotive. It includes new vehicle product information, automotive industry news, reviews of vehicles driven by the show's on-air team, motorsports updates, collector car information and, of course, listener questions answered by our own expert mechanic and restoration expert, Les Jackson.

Co-hosts Les Jackson and Fred Staab engage in lively discussions of automotive news of the week. Plus, you'll hear in-depth interviews with leading car industry executives, designers, engineers and product managers, who provide our listeners with detailed information that's often not available through other media outlets.

Recent selected guests include Jay Mays, V.P. of Design for the Ford Motor Company, Dave Hill, Corvette Chief Engineer, Gary Talbot, head of GM Mobility with a live remote from Detroit's Woodward Avenue Dream Cruise, Diane Steed, President of the Coalition for Vehicle Choice and former Administrator of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and Bryan Nesbitt, Senior Designer for GM.
